In Harmony with the Environment

Since 1922, the Elmhurst Public Library has been located in Wilder Park in the center of Elmhurst, a suburban Chicago community of 43,000. When the library outgrew its old home, a site at the north end of the park was selected for a new building. The architects' goal was to create a design in harmony with the park and a complement to Elmhurst's emerging "cultural campus," which includes the Elmhurst Art Museum and Lizzadro Museum of Lapidary Art, also situated in Wilder Park.
